

The Story of Creation Re-visited Through Ancient Song Lines

Introduction

We have re-visited the Book of Genesis in the new light that the entire Genesis text has been derived from ancient song lines from the time that Adam and Eve were in the Garden of Eden and subsequently passed these oral prose down the generations to Moses and his scribes through a system of memory retention until the time of their reproduction in compendium form under his authorship.

The revelations that have come to light are astonishing and all of a sudden the Genesis text and in particular the Creation account become very real and understandable to our current information and techno savvy generation.

If you had any doubts about the authenticity of the Book of Genesis and the events it reports you really need to read this major article. Your whole outlook on the Bible will change forever.

Geoff Rooke