

Adam Was Not a Hermaphrodite!

Introduction

I was “shared” on social media into an article authored by a well-educated fellow touching on a matter that was thematically consistent with his occupation - but curiously dealt with the advent of Adam and Eve.

The gist of the article was that when God made Adam he made Adam both male and female and therefore prior to Eve being made from Adam’s rib, Adam had all of humanity’s femininity within him. And then when God made Eve, the femininity from Adam became Eve.

This is certainly not scriptural and cunningly fits into what non-Christians and those who accept extra-biblia teaching would muse to be – a grey area. So, being prompted by the risk of this idea gaining any traction I thought a frank article for the benefit of everyone would be the best response.

Geoff Rooke