The Seed of Eve

The seed of Eve, as mentioned in Genesis 3:15, is a subject that was pretty well sorted out many years ago, but in more recent times with the advent of research into Deoxyribonucleic Acid (DNA) there is more to this matter than the early scholars could have imagined. In hindsight, they missed the spectacular bits that Science has now been able to fill in.

Genesis 3:15 accounts God's judgement on Adam, Eve and Lucifer following Adam and Eve's fall from grace after disobeying God's word on the matter of eating the fruit of the tree of the knowledge of good and evil. The judgement spans ten verses at the end of Chapter Three and is applied in different ways individually to Adam, Eve and Lucifer.

In point form the judgements were:

Eve

Multiply her sorrow and her conception.

In sorrow shall bring forth children

Her desire shall be to her husband

Her husband shall rule over her.

Unable to return to Garden

Loss of innocence with knowledge of evil.

Lucifer

Cursed is he above all cattle and every beast of the field.

Shall go on his belly

Dust shall he eat for the rest of his life

There will be enmity between him and Eve.

There will be enmity between his seed and Eve's seed.

Eve's seed shall bruise his head.

His seed shall bruise the heel of Eve's seed.

Adam

Cursed is the ground for his sake.

In sorrow he shall eat of the ground all the days of his life.

Thorns and thistles shall the ground bring forth and he shall eat the herb of the field.

In sweat he shall eat bread for the rest of his days.

Unable to return to the Garden.

Loss of innocence with knowledge of evil.

We could have a lengthy discussion about all of the terms of the judgement but it would take us off track from our topic. We are interested in just the seed of Eve and to start off we know from Hebrew scholars that this word “seed” is singular and does not pertain to all of those offspring that would come from Eve’s motherhood.

We get a good clue from the judgement pronounced upon Lucifer that Eve’s seed refers to Jesus our Lord who was to come forth some 4,000 years hence. And we can connect the word “enmity” to what we have seen in the world’s struggle between Lucifer and the Lord in the millenniums since Eden.

It is very clear that Lucifer has had an agenda for all of these thousands of years commencing with Adam (via Eve) down through the crucifixion of God’s Only Begotten Son and continuing on to this present day. And I might add that the enmity will continue until the very end when Lucifer will be finally dealt with.

There are two small points that can be clarified here that might be interesting to some since we are discussing the individual judgements. Both Adam and Lucifer were judged to eat of the ground all the days of their lives. The interesting aspect of this is that in Adam’s case he was judged to eat of the “ground” for the rest of his days.(Gen 3:17) The word “ground” was translated from the Hebrew “Adamah” which takes its name from its general redness (Strongs) and means: soil, earth, ground, country, land.

But now look at the judgement upon Lucifer (Gen 3:14), he was judged to go upon his belly and to eat “dust” for the rest of his days. The word “dust” was translated from the Hebrew word “aphar” and takes its meaning from its appearance as powder or gray (Strongs) and means: clay, mud, ashes, powder, rubbish, earth , ground. The difference between the two is quite stark. As a side note, it is a myth that Lucifer was made into a snake. Oh no! He was in rank the highest cherub in heaven and even after being judged in Eden he was still walking up and down in the Earth and was still permitted to be in the presence of God with the other Sons of God (Job 2:1 - 2). Why he was to eat dust was that he was made flightless on the Earth, his cherub wings were either removed or rendered useless , and everywhere he went he “ate the dust” in respect of walking throughout the earth, ie like following a motor vehicle down a dusty road. This is why his “ground” was powdery and gray.

In Genesis 3:20 Adam names his helpmeet “Chavvah” which has been translated to be Eve because she was to be a life-giver, the first woMan (Note the capitalisation), the mother of all living. We might make some assumption about the expression “mother of all living” but here is the twist.

When Adam and Eve came forth into the world at God's hand, they did so into a world that was populated with land and aquatic animals, birds, and – Hominin indigenous man that had been on the planet some 500,000 years. The last of these indigenous man specie were Cro-Magnon man, Denisovan man and Neanderthal man whom after half a million years were still stuck in their primitivism as Stone Age hunter gatherers. These were low brain functioning humans that had not achieved articulate language nor any advancement to their self-serving life styles. We see their point of entry into the world in Genesis 1:26-27 and note that they were made in the likeness of image to the heavenly beings (Verse 26) but it has come to be accepted as in the image of God (Verse 27). But there the similarity ends.

God did not breathe into them the “breath” of life, referring to a soul that is so unique to modern (Adamic) mankind, but still blessed them and decreed them a vegetarian diet and for them to have dominion over the other animals on Earth.

Why I mention this is because when Adam stated that Eve was the Mother of all living, he obviously was not saying this as an inclusion of the established Hominin indigenous man. So what was he saying? Well in fact Adam was highlighting in this song line that Eve was to be the mother of all those who had a living soul and in doing so distinguished for us that the Adamic man was not the same as the indigenous Stone Age man.

In recent years there has been a lot of interest in the very structure of human life, and Science has been very enthusiastic in its pursuit of understanding what makes us human and also what makes us individuals. Certainly from a Scientific perspective human genome and DNA research has exploded and has turned up findings that are very relevant to biblical studies.

These findings confirm that modern man can trace his lineage back to a single female who existed back in ancient Earth, and whilst Science cannot say who this female was, the information serves to confirm what the Hebrew scripts have accounted in Genesis.

The advancement in DNA knowledge also enables Science to see the relationships between mother/father and offspring. Similarly it can see sibling relationships and other lineage connections making this research very powerful indeed. One hesitates to think of the consequences if the Nazi regime of the last millennia had this technology in respect of their anti-Jewish attempted genocide.

And of course we know that the seed of life for a child is borne by the female gender, not by the male and we also know from the Hebrew script that it was critical that the bloodline of Adam and Eve be preserved in a blood-line purity down the generations some four thousand years to Miriam (Mary) who brought forth Jesus our Lord. Remember that Adam was not of the same DNA as the beasts of the earth (note no capitalisation) or the creatures from the waters or the creatures that fly. Adam's DNA was from the earth by the hand of God and not from the same evolutionary strain as were the beasts brought forth by the earth or that of Hominin indigenous man.

Not only did this make Adam's DNA unique and pure, but also because he did not come forth from a mother's seed, his DNA most likely was of a new sequencing not previously existing in the then current life forms of Hominin man or the family/genus of angels. Eve, as you will recall, was brought forth from tissue from Adam's body therefore she had the same pure DNA structure as Adam.

The remarkable task arising from this to preserve the purity of this DNA down the thousands of years is extraordinary. Along the way, the purity of the blood line was placed in serious jeopardy from intermingling with Hominin man and also a lesser spoken of danger, inter marriage with the fallen angels whose DNA was of a family/genus that included Lucifer. (There is a deep truth here.)

Commencing with our first modern-man forebears, Eve carried the seed within her that would remain pure for Jesus to come forth. And this DNA was preserved and as it is accounted, the DNA of the Lucifer family/genus was prevented from polluting the DNA of the second Adam by the cleansing of the human and animal life forms through the Noahadic Flood.

After the flood subsided Noah, his wife, three sons and daughters-in-law exited the craft having been on it for a full year, and from there God blessed them to go forth into the Earth. But the twist in the story is that from recent DNA research, mankind today has trace DNA from Neanderthal Man, and the only way this could have occurred is through at least one of the wives of Noah's sons being from a mixed marriage. On the positive side, at least one of the other wives of Noah's sons was of the pure blood line that had been preserved. And I mention this because not only had the world turned Godless and only Noah was found to be faithful to God, but God stepped in at the last possible moment to preserve the pure DNA seed that originated from Eve.

I have found that this "Just-in-Time" action (or principle) by God is not unique in biblical history. I am of the opinion that Adam came forth just in time before Neanderthal Man went into a critical extinction period. As we have discussed, certainly this was the case with Eve's seed coming through the flood. I am of the opinion that when Miriam (Mary) brought forth Jesus she was the last of the eligible females that had within her the Seed of Eve that had preserved the purity of the DNA from Adam.

It is these critical periods and events that “triggers” God’s Plan for man’s redemption and not some mathematical formula that predicts a set period of time in these cases. If I may also add, in relation to Jesus’ birth, that the priesthood had also been corrupted and the temple-centric worship defiled and destroyed.

So here we have the cycle of the Seed of Eve. It was critical for Jesus to have been born from a pure Adamic seed because his station in life was far higher than that of Hominin Man or Family/Genus of Angel. And as we may also note the Seed of Eve was within her DNA before she disobeyed God, therefore her seed remained sinless right the way down her generations to Miriam (Mary) and the birth of the Lord.

And this is why we refer to Adam (of 5,776 Years ago) as the First Adam, and we refer to Jesus as the second (or scripturally – The Last) Adam, because they both came into our world in similar circumstances, ie Adam to Hominin Man, Jesus to developed modern man. Both carried the revelation of God, Adam revealing that there was God and Jesus revealing that there was a Spirit of God. Both revelations were part and parcel of the Redemption Plan of old.

These two human souls were an essential part of the general redemption of believers in both the Christian era and the resurrection of the faithful from the old era at Jesus’ ascension. It is an amazing story that just gets more amazing as all of the pieces of information come together.

Please note also that parts of this article have been taken from a major work done by Faithchasers titled, The Story of Creation Revisited through Ancient Song Lines. This quite extensive work is available on the [www.faithchasers.net] website and is available without cost to all who may be interested in following through the recent discoveries of Genesis being a series of ancient song lines that were passed from generation to generation until Moses and his scribes were able to put them into the written modality of communication. Because their prose form is now recognised for what they are, these Genesis passages have now given up a staggering volume of information that up until this time were hidden behind a veil of academic speak and unsubstantiated profferings.

So here, Faithchasers, is the truth that needs to be put out there when opportunity presents itself.

Eve is no myth, nor is the pure blood line. Lucifer is not a snake and Noah's Flood cleansed the DNA strains from humankind that were of the inter mingled Family/genus of Angels.

Go to it my friends.
