

The Continuing Hunt for (Non-Existent) Aliens

Introduction

With more articles appearing in the media about aliens and inter-galactic wars coupled with their promotion by high profile media-prone scientists is it any wonder that the general societal view is skewed completely off balance when it comes to “what is really out there”. Most people in the world, including some major free-world governments do not know the truth about what is in our universe and have been conditioned to accept that Science knows what it is talking about.

Well on the subject of aliens in the universe they have been lying to the public for over half a century. Science has not found one shred of evidence that supports the existence of aliens, or in fact of any other life form outside of planet Earth. Everything Science has researched has come up empty, however for reasons that which they have not revealed they perpetuate the notion of aliens in the universe despite this.

This article addresses this subject and points out the ludicrous contextual issues that Science is remaining silent on and we express the deeper reasons why this is a God made universe and planet and there are no aliens.

This is a good read for those on either side of the polar divide.
